INFORMATION DISCLOSURE STATEMENT

Dear Assistant Commissioner:

More than one year prior to filing the present application, Applicant Natalie Noel used a prototype of the invention for her own personal enjoyment. While Ms. Noel was sometimes in public view while using the prototype, the prototype itself was always concealed from public view by a shirt or other outer garment. Thus, Ms. Noel's use of the prototype was as private as practical given the nature of the invention. "Private use of an invention is permissible." See Moleculon Research Corp. v. CBS, Inc., 793 F.2d 1261, para. 45 (Fed. Cir. 1986) (copy enclosed). The prototype was not used by any other person.

Furthermore, the claimed invention is different from the prototype. In particular, the prototype is totally inelastic. The claimed invention requires "sufficient[] elastic[ity] so as to ensure a close fit." Therefore, even if use of the prototype was a public use, the invention would still be patentable over that public use.

 In conclusion, Applicant Natalie Noel's non-public use of the patently distinguishable prototype of the invention for her own personal enjoyment does not constitute a statutory bar under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b). Nonetheless, Applicants are filing this paper out of an abundance of caution to ensure complete compliance with 37 C.F.R. 1.56.

Applicants' undersigned attorney can be reached at (614) 486-3585. All correspondence should continue to be directed to the address indicated below.

Respectfully submitted,
